The Labor Notes conference is like a shot in the arm for our movement's grassroots activists.

Rub shoulders and share strategies with others facing the same challenges you do. Learn the skills you need in nitty gritty workshops and hear speakers tackle labor's biggest debates.

Conference topics include:

- Defend jobs, contracts, and unions during the economic crisis.
Employers everywhere are taking advantage of hard times (or inventing them). What are the strategies that work?
- Hold the line on the shop floor.
Technology and management schemes are changing the workplace dramatically. How can we keep up?
- Examine labor's political agenda.
Unions went all-out in the elections, but labor law and health care reform aren't measuring up. What's the best use of our political time and energy?
- Protect the public sector.
Layoffs and budget cuts threaten public services and public sector work. Where are public employees holding the line?

"We were at the Labor Notes conference just a few months before Republic Windows said they were shutting down our plant.

"It was good to be with all those other troublemakers, but we didn't know we were going to be some of the most famous troublemakers of 2008, by sitting in and sticking it to Bank of America. We'll be back for more next time."

Ricky Maclin, Vice President, UE Local 1110, Chicago
