In December, 260 workers at Chicago's Republic Windows & Doors factory occupied their plant for six days, a sit-in strike launched in response to the closing of their plant with only 3 days notice. Jobs with Justice coalitions along with other community, faith and labor activists from across the country mobilized in support of these courageous members of UE Local 1110, helping them win a settlement from Bank of America and Republic owners including severance pay and compensation for unpaid earnings.

As the economic crisis deepens, millions of workers face job losses, foreclosures on their homes, and other economic hardships. Join Jobs with Justice and other groups in celebrating the successful resistance at Republic and launch the broader campaign for an economic recovery that puts Main Street before Wall Street.
